POLLUTION

Plastic pollution is an ongoing issue world wide and even in the ocean. It is caused by people disposing their litter freely and not into bins. Most food packaging is made of plastic, in fact most things are made of plastic these days. Not only does it look a mess but is also extremely harmful to animals. It gets into their systems and therefore can result in death.

Plastic is taking over the ocean very, very quickly and if we don't do something about it, it's just going to get worse. We have started to do a few things to improve plastic pollution like

Pollution in the ocean

- We dump approximately 8 million metric tonnes into the ocean each year.
- The least polluted ocean (South Atlantic) has 297 billion pollution particles, whereas the most polluted ocean (Indian ocean) has 2 trillion pollution particles in it.
- China is the biggest polluter, and in 2010 they put 8.8 million metric tonnes of plastic waste into the ocean.
